Bay-Waveland schools prep for evaluation

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District is expecting problems in gaining state accreditation due to outdated facilities, but principals at all five of the district's schools say they expect to be ready for all other aspects of the evalua-

An evaluation team of educators and administrators from other school districts will visit the schools and the district's central office Feb. 3, 4 and 5, according to Dr. Betty Jones of the central office, who has been heading the preparations for the visit.

Evaluators have been specifically trained to inspect schools to see if they comply with State Accreditation Commission standards.

The Bay St. Louis-Waveland district has some accrediation trained evaluators, including Jones and Superintendent of Education Roger Oge', but evaluators may not participate in the inspection of their own school districts, Jones said.

26 inch;

Jones, however, has already inspected the schools herself and has notified principals of noncompliance where necessary.

Many of the problems Jones found are related to the age and student population of the schools and can not be remedied except through a $3.5 million, district-wide building program that has started with the inprogress construction of an addition to Waveland Elementary School and includes renovations and additions at North Bay Elementary, Bay Junior High and Bay Senior High School.

No renovations are planned at St. Rose Fifth Grade Center because that facility is not owned by the school district. The center is leased from St. Rose de Lima Catholic Church through the Catholic Diocese of Biloxi.

Teachers and other staff members are working at night to handle instructional and instruction-related matters, such as updating students' records, all five principals stated in a recent report to the school board.

Jones' findings provide "pretty good documentation for the need that we had for the building program," Waveland Elementary Principal James Baldree stated.

"If they look at what we have in terms of what we're supposed to have, we're in trouble," said Roger James, principal of North Bay Elementary. "If they look at how well we keep what we've got, we're in good shape."

James said North Bay now has 524 students in grades kindergarten through four. The building was built in 1960 and, although what is there has been maintained, James said two areas he is concerned about are restrooms and the cafeteria.

No additions have been made to either facility to keep up with increases in student population. Although students use the cafeteria in four different time periods, James said the school will probably be cited for having too many students in the cafeteria at each sitting.

He said the stage in the cafeteria is also being used for music classes and that at least one classroom has more than 27 students per teacher, which is the current limit set by the State Accreditation Commission.

He said altering schedules for some of the individual students will probably correct that problem.

Waveland Elementary, which Baldree said is referred to as "the new school" although the building is already 15 years old, has taken some of the student overflow from North Bay due to a decision made in 1986 when kindergarten was added and school officials discovered that the North Bay sewer system was already operating at full capacity.

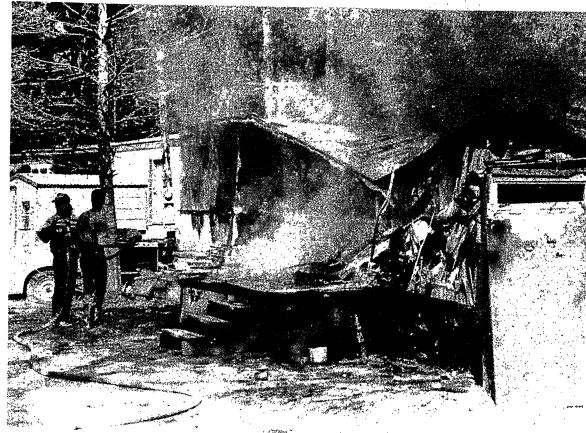

The school has 354 students "but this changes daily," Baldree said. About 70 to 80 of those students are special needs students and some of them are attending computerassisted classes in a converted hallway.

The audio-visual equipment room in the library has also been appropriated as a classroom, baldree said, and the equipment is scattered throughout the school wherever space can be found.

"I you have an empty pocket, somebody wants to put something in it at Waveland; it's that bad," the principal said.

Space is a problem not only indoors but outdoors as well. Baldree said a part of the playground has been disrupted for the new construction.

A woman who escaped a Pearlington trailer fire with her child and the sister she shared the mobile home with are in need of assistance.

One of the women, Adell Acker, was at home with one of her daughters when she discovered the

Her sister, Beverly Acker, and the other seven children who lived in the trailer were not at home at the time.

The two families lost the trailer and all its contents.

Adell Acker told Richard Fayard
Sr., a Hancock County arson investigator standing in for County

Fire Marshall Jay Marsh, that she barely had time to determine where the fire was, grab the child out of a playmen and run out the door to escape the flames.

Fayard said Acker had stated that the corner of the kitchen where the stove had been was in flames when she fled the mobile home.

She told him she had left one of the stove burners running on low in order to heat the trailer because the heating unit was not hooked up.

smoke coming from the kitchen.

she hadn't gone back to sleep, because she and that baby would never have made it out," Fayard said.

Volunteer firefighters from the West Hancock and BaySide Park volunteer fire departments were unable to save the trailer, located on Seventh Avenue off White's Road, but were able to keep the fire from spreading to nearby residences.

Fayard said the trailer was owned by the two sisters' mother, Mary C. Acker, who lives next door. Mary C. Acker said the mobile home was blazing when she saw her daughter come out with the child in her arms.

Childrens clothing is needed in sizes eight, 11 and 12 for girls; size six, eight and medium shirts and six, eight and 32-32 pants for boys; and size 12 for the two adult women. Shoes are needed in sizes two, eight, eight and one-half, 12 and 13 for the children and sizes six and 10 for the adults.

Supervisors to consider equipment purchases

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
The Hancock County Board

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors Friday is expected to take action on equipment needs for the maintenance department including mowers, tractors, road graders and dump trucks.

In a workshop meeting last week Bill Johnson, county maintenance superintendent, presented a proposal for all equipment needs.

posal for all equipment needs.

For road right of way mowing,
Johnson recommended purchasing five offset pull behind mowers to be attached to present side mower trac-

He said this will enable mowers to double the amount of area cut with one pass.

"With these mowers we should be able to increase productivity with less hours and fuel consumption," Johnson said.

He said the mowers had had a hard time keeping up with the mowing in the past year.

Cost of these pull behind mowers is estimated at $3,300 each.

Johnson also recommended the purchase of one new tractor with side and pull behind mowers at an estimated cost of $35,000. The final recommendations for grass cutting equipment purchases were fro a new tractor and flexwing cutter mower to be used mostly on state aid roads with wide right of ways.

Johnson said this would allow mowers to makde three passes in one.

He estimated total grass cutting

He estimated total grass cutting equipment purchases at $81,000 and suggested monies from bridge construction, capital outlay and revenue sharing be used to finance these purchases or leases.

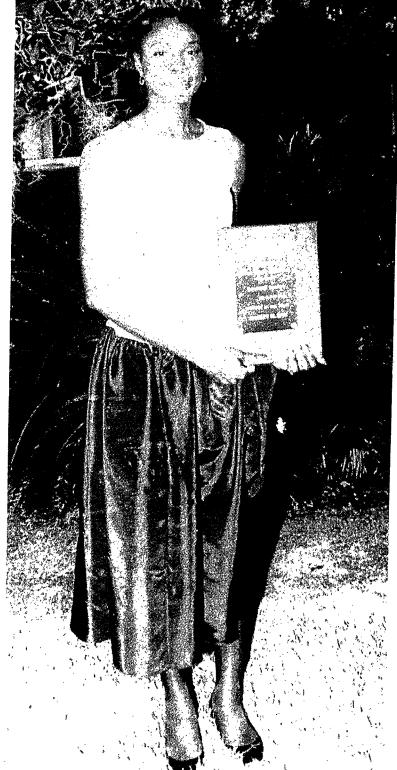

Also during the discussion of right of way mowing, the supervisors agreed to a cylical mowing program which would allow mowers to cut all grass in one area before moving to another area.

This agreement followed a discussion of past practices in which a single employee on a tractor had to wait six hours before assistance arrived after the tractor had broken down.

Under the new program mowers will all work together in a single area with a one supervisor to provide continous backup and assistance if needed.

Other equipment needs listed include two road graders.

Johnson told the group repairs on two graders currently in the shop would cost would be costly because PURCHASES—Page 7A

Pecan Park residents question city zoning

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

Bay St. Louis City officials are in the process of making corrections and additions to a bill of exceptions filed this week in an appeal to a zoning decision by the city council.

Curtis Matherne, Mark Boston, Milton Townsend and Burt Taylor are appealing the rezoning of a parcel of land off Old Spanish Trail near the Pecan Park subdivision.

The change in zoning from residential to special use district will allow for the construction of a technical park.

In public hearings on the proposed zoning change, area residents protested the location of the technical park near their homes.

Charles Ramsey, president of Bay Technical Associates of Bay St. Louis, had requested the zoning change and in the hearings presented architect's drawing of how the park would look.

The city council approved the zoning change Dec. 8 as recommended by the Bay St. Louis Planning and Zoning Commission.

City attorney John A. Scafide said Wednesday when city officials had completed corrections and deletions

Chapter I students are using computers in a partitioned hallway, partitions are being used in some classrooms and the library is out in a hallway because the room it was in had to be used as a classroom.

Principal W.J. Cameron said most of the problems at the junior high, built in 1926, will be remedied through remodeling included in the building program. However, the age of the S.J. Ingram building may take some points away on the evaluation due to physical problems as well as due to the fact that children must cross a street to go to and from the main building.

Bay High Principal Billy Rhodes said the Bay High building, just over 20 years old, is in good shape except for some locks damaged last year by students.

"We had a class get locked in a room the other day. For some reason I don't know, we had a fad last year where students put Superglue in the locks," he said. The damage is being repaired as soon as it can be detected.

All five principals, Assistant Superintendent Robert Magee and Superintendent's Secretary Domenica Favre gave favorable reports regarding instructional and record related matters being check-ed in preparation for the evaluation. Favre said the preparations had even led to the finding of a book containing seven years of board minutes that had been discovered missing last year.

It is good to be back home after Jane and I took an extended vacation to Israel, Jordan and Egypt.

We know many folks were worried about our well-being because of the many reports of violence coming from that part of the world during the past few weeks.

I could not believe some of the stories I read about happenings which were said to have happened in many of the areas we visited.

A pilgrimage to the Holy Land should be made by every Christian, as it is an experience words cannot describe.

Our party in the Holy Land also consisted of Rev. and Mrs. Robert Miller and Rev. and Mrs. Wilton Holston of Bay St. Louis.

After being away from this computer for three weeks it is hard to get my fingers to strike the correct keys.

This vacation is one which we will always remember, because we did such things as ride a camel, cross the Gallilean Sea in 13 feet high waves, ride a train from Cairo to Aswan, cross the Suez Canal on a ferry, etc.

It will take many hours to tell the so many things we experienced.

Yes, the vacation was fantastic, and ves, it still is greater to be an American living in the United States.

In case you are an early riser and have forgotten, this morning there will be a Hancock County Chamber of Commerce Morning Edition at 7:30 a.m. at the Wheel Inn Restaurant, Bay St. Louis.

Dr. Jim W. Meredith, director of the Mississippi Research and Development Center, will be the featured speaker. He will be talking about Hancock County's potential for Economic Develop-

Time is running out for new residents to register in order to vote in the March 8 Super Tuesday Election.

Pam Metzler, Circuit clerk, tells us the last day to register will be Friday, Feb. 5 until 5 p.m.

The Circuit clerk's office is open Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and residents aged 18 years and older are eligible to register.

It is important to vote in every election and every vote does count.

As we all do at the beginning of a new year, I would like to look ahead at some of the challenges before our nation this year.

Recently, I did a lot more looking ahead, when I went to Capitol Hill and delivered the annual State of the Union Address. The State of the Union is the only statement that the Constitution itself requires the President to give.

Almost all presidents since Woodrow Wilson have delivered States of the Union in person, not just sent up written messages. This was my seventh time. The thrill of standing in that place where so many great presidents have stood, and of continuing a tradition that stretches back to George Washington and signifies our determination that, as Lincoln said, a Government of, by, and for the people "shall not perish from the earth"-that thrill never goes away.

As I told Congress, we in Washington have a lot of work ahead of us-for starters, preserving the economic growth of the past five years. Earlier this month we had good news on this front-our trade deficit dropped by 25 percent, but more importantly our exports, which have been climbing for more than a year, shot forward nearly 10 percent in one month and reached the highest levels in American history. Yes, American industry is in an export boom and our economy is strong-in fact, it is the envy of the world.

But we all know that there are still unanswered questions in our economic future—the biggest—"Are we going to keep working to reduce

News from the Capitol City

By Ellen Ann Fentress Mississippi Reporting Service

Gov. Ray Mabus unrolled his budgetary blueprint last week that set out specifics on how the Mississippi Legislature can make good on Mabus' campaign promise of boosting teacher pay without higher taxes. However, budget leaders at the Capitol claimed the plan may work for one year without a tax hike, but will need more revenue in future years.

A major vote expected last week evaporated, when House members voted to adjourn Friday rather than debate replacing the Mississippi Constituion of 1890 with a new state constitution.

The biggest event of the week in the Senate were committee assignments handed out by Lt. Gov. Brad Dve. With committees finally in place in both chambers, committee work, the first stop before a bill reaches the floor for a full vote, should begin this week

This year is following the same pattern as typical opening years in the four-year state government cycle: it lasts four instead of three months and few laws are passed the Mabus filled legislators in on his budget behind closed doors before outling his plans to the public. The is relying on optimistic revenue forecasts and one-time funds to stretch his budget to $1.79 billion. The plan set out by the Legislative Budget Committee is $1.61 billion.

The governor's plan would inject an extra $114 million for teacher pay, which would place Mississippi sixth in teacher pay levels for the 12 Southeastern states. The average raise would be $3,600, with individual increases ranging from $2,000 to $6,000, depending on experience.

Mabus also called for an extra $66 million to be funneled into state university budgets and an extra $18.2 million to junior colleges.

On the revenue side, the Mabus budget relied most heavily on hopes for better tax collections to pay for his additions to the budget. His budget was $189 million above this year's budget and $186 million above the budget recommended by the Legislative Budget Office.

Mabus predicts tax collections to a healthy economy to produce $101.7 million better than expected, produced by a healthy economy. His second biggest pile of one-time money calls for relacing $32 million in stateaid road funds with a bond-financed road program. Also in his financing plan are a one-shot addition by advancing the date insurance premium taxes are collected and $27 million through changing the payment schedule on existing highway bonds.

Cuts in state programs would pay for part of his plans as well, including a $2 million cut to the repair fund for state buildings and about $700,000 in cuts each to state aid to municipalities, to the Department of Public Welfare and the Tax Commission

Because Mabus' plan uses so many one-time sources of funds, House Appropriations Chairman Charlie Capps predicted a tax increase next year if Mabus gets what he wants this year

Senate appropriations leader Jack Gordon of Okolona warned that Mabus would face cutting back state spending of Mabus' rosy economic forecast does not materialize.

Last week ended surprisingly quick when House members voted to go home early Friday morning rather than consider constitutional reform as expected.

The House voted 67-43 to adjourn. House members dodged the vote when the votes of several factions formed a majority vote to leave town. Voting to adjourn were some members who oppose replacing the old constitution, along with those who wanted to postpone the House Constitution Committee Chaiman Ed Perry expressed frustration that some of the prochange, reform faction now pushing their weight in the Capitol were among the first to vote to go home as the House faced its first major vote of the new four-year term.

In the Senate, Dye promoted his ally Gordon to become the new chairman of the Appropriations Committee. He bypassed the Senate's senior member, 24-year veteran Sen. Robert Crook of Ruleville, whom he left as appropriations vice chairman.

HOW THEY VOTED

House vote to adjourn on Friday, Jan. 22. The 67-43 vote to adjourn headed off consideration of a bill to set a Nov. 8 statewide referendum on whether a constitutional convention should be held in July 1989 to replace the Constitution of 1890-Compretta, No.

House Bill 317, the constitutional convention measure, has 70 cosponsors among the House's 122 members. Sponsors include Com-

Report from the Senate

BY SENATOR GENE TAYLOR

The work of the State Senate has now been clearly defined. Lieutenant Governor Brad Dye has announced the committee appointments for each member; several hundred bills have been introduced for our consideration; and Governor Ray Mabus has outlined his budget proposal and legislative program.

Committee assignments are important 'because this is where the real work of the Legislature is done. All bills must be referred to a committee and receive favorable action in order to be voted on by the full Senate.

The committees look at the more than 2,000 bills which are filed each year and decide on which ones deserve full consideration by the

My committee appointments for the next four years include vice chairman of the Executive Contingent Fund and member of the Agriculture, Elections, Finance, Municipalities. Ports and Industries, and Wildlife and Marine Resources Committees.

The budget proposal presented by Governor Ray Mabus called for the expenditure of nearly $200 million in new money for education.

The majority of the funds, some $114 million, would go for raising public school teacher salaries to the Southeastern average. The beginning teachers would receive $2,000 per year and the teachers with the greatest certification and most years experience could get $6,000.

The average teacher pay raise would be $3,700. The governor's proposal would also give $66 million more to the universities and $18 million more to the junior colleges, with the bulk in each case going for salary increases. The Governor proposes to grant this extra funding for education by cutting out some administrative money from several agencies, transferring special funds from certain agencies, and changing the funding mechanism for the highway and other road construction pro-

I am sure that the Legislature will give strong consideration to the Governor's budget, but it will require much study because there is some concern about using money that is available on a one-time basis only and about no pay raises for state employees being included in the budget.

During his "State of the State" address, Governor Mabus outlined his legislative program for this year and following years. He said that he plans to propose a second Education Reform Act during the first half of this term and he hopes to change the budgetary process next year. He said that he strongly supports the pending legislation which would allow the voters to decide in a referendum if you want to have a convention called to rewrite the state's constitution or continue to revise it by the amendment process. Mabus said he favors a complete

In the area of governmental reform, Mabus told us he wants the unit system of administration mandated for every county in the state. As for state government, he proposes to name a 25-member committee to report back in the early fall on a plan to reduce the number of state agencies to 15. He asked that this session we consider legislation that would make only one agency responsible for economic development with the director responsible to the Governor.

Next week, we begin our committee meetings to consider the proposals of the Governor and the hundreds of bills already filed by legislators.

I would be glad to hear your views on any issure. Please feel free to write to me at the Mississippi State Senate, P.O. Box 1018, Jackson, Mississippi 39205 or call me at

Compretta named to key committee posts

JACKSON-State Representative J.P. Compretta of Bay St. Louis has been named chairman of the House Committee on Local and Private Legislation for the 1988-92 legislative

"It is truly an honor to be selected to serve as chairman of the Local and Private Legislative Committee. This is one of the busiest committees in the House and handles some of the most important bills affecting citizens of both urban and rural areas throughout Mississippi," Compretta said.

Compretta, who represents House District 122 in Hancock County, also was named to serve on the Conservation and Water Resources Committee, Judicary "A" Committee, State Library Committee, and Ways and Means Committee.

In addition, he was named to the Joint Legislative Committee on Performance Evaluation and Expenditure Review (PEER), an investigating arm of the Legislature.

Compretta said he was especially pleased to have been named chairman of the Marine Resources Subcommittee of the Conservation and Water Resources Committee. "We'll be handling a lot of bills in this subcommittee that directly affect our coastal area,;' he said. The Committee on Local and Private Legislation is the only standing committee specifically mandated under the Mississippi Constitution. Section 89 of the Constitution provides that no local or private bills shall be passed by the House or Senate without having been assigned to the Local and Private Legislation Committees.

The committee works closely with local governing boards in handling a wide range of bills involving matters of a local nature.

Dusts are less effective than sprays but are more economical if only a few animals need to be treated. Dusts also can be used in wintertime when sprays cannot. Don't forget to treat pens, hog houses and bedding when controlling lice and mange infestations. Remember to read labels and follow directions to insure safe and proper

Marine Education Center showing snake exhibit

Friend or foe? This question is often asked about the snakes that inhabit south Mississippi, and now Gulf Coast Research Laboratory's J.L. Scott Marine Education Center in Biloxi has an exhibit designed to acquaint local residents and visitors with the species of snakes that live in the area and to identify the poisonous snakes which pose a threat.

Gerald C. Corcoran, curator of the MEC, said that this display composed of photographs he has taken over the years will be of special importance to hunters, anglers and others involved in outdoor activities. Several live snakes are on display to enhance the exhibit.

Corcoran pointed out that many snakes are beneficial because they eat rodents which can infest grain storage facilities and can transmit rabies and other diseases

The Marine Education Center is open to the public from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday. Admission is $2 for adults, $1 for senior citizens and young people ages 3-16 and 50 cents each for students in groups that contact the Center in advance. Children under 3 are admitted free.

The Center is located at the west end of the Bilox-Ocean Springs bridge on the south side of U.S. Hwy. 90 in Biloxi.

Football fans, looking forward to sponsoring organization by using it, Super Bowl XXII on Sunday, are being warned by a national consumer group that the National Football League's new credit card program is a bad deal for the nation's fans.

The NFL has teamed up with Citybank to offer a VISA card emblazoned with the helmet logo of every football team in the league (except the New York Giants, who already have a card program of their own).

"The NFL card scores a touchdown for the clubs and the league," said Bankcard Holders of America (BHA) Director Elgie Holstein, "but when it comes to the fans, Citybank and the NFL have fumbled.'

The NFL card carries a 17.8 percent interest rate and $25 annual fee after the first six months. Every time a fan uses one of the NFL cards, a donation is made to the NFL charities supporting a variety of different causes. Fans also rack up "pro dollars" with each purchase—one pro dollar for every five dollars charged on the card-and can use these to purchase NFL merchandise at a discount.

But part of the annual fee and finance charges consumers pay for the card will go the NFL-and the league refuses to disclose these

"The problem with most affinity group cards," says BHA Director Elgie Holstein, "is that by the time the bank and the group take their share, there's not much left to pass on to consumers in terms of favorable rates and fees. Most affinity card programs carry interest rates below the 18.3 percent national average, but still between 17 and 18 percent, compared with the 11 to 15 percent consumers could be paying," said Mr. Holstein. "The fact is, most consumers can get a better deal by shopping around on

To help consumers find better deals, BHA has released its own newly updated 1988 "Fair Deal" list of banks issuing credit cards at the lowest rates: 15 percent and below. BHA also released its updated list of banks that issue "free" credit cards: those that charge no annual fee. Each list is $1.50 (to cover postage and handling) and is available by mail from BHA's office in Washington, D.C.

Affinity Card Marketing

The marketing of credit cards tied to a cause—"affinity cards"—is quickly becoming the hottest area of bank credit card marketing today, with more than one thousand progrms already underway.

Now that some 80 million Americans are holding over 186 million bankcards, most credit card marketing is aimed at consumers who already have at least one card.

Banks hope that by associating their card with a cause, and by getting associations and groups to sponsor their offers, consumers will not only be more likely to sign up, but will use the card more often than the others in their wallets.

Under most affinity arrangements, as with the new NFL card, a fee is paid by the bank issuer to the group for each card issued to one of its members.

In addition, a percentage of each purchase amount, often one-half of one percent, is also paid to the group throughout the year. The bank pays the marketing costs of the program, while the group provides its endoresement and list of members.

Affinity group cards are very popular with the banks because credit card mailings endoresed by an organization have a better chance of being opened and read than unendorsed credit card offers.

Add the attractions of a group's logo on the card and the opportunity to make small contributions to the and the offer may seem very attrac-

As an added enticement, most affinity offers waive the annual fee for consumers the first year. After that, however, the annual fee is often $25 -$35 per year. For consumers who pay off their balances every month, a card with no annual fee and a grace period would be a better choice.

Consumers Lose

Furthermore, when consumers make a donation to a charitable organization, they can deduct the amount of the contribution when they itemize on their federal tax

When consumers make donations indirectly by using affinity group cards that automatically make the contribution, consumers lose the tax deduction; the banks enjoy the deduction instead.

And with the new tax law phasing out deductions for consumer interest-only 40 percent of credit card interest payments will be deductible in 1988-high interest rate cards are even less attractive.

Holstein also warned consumers that, regardless of the affinity card membership, the application process for affinity cards requires the same credit checks as any other bankcard.

Although affinity programs vary widely, they generally fall into several categories: issue groups like the Sierra Club, Planned Parenthood, and Greenpeace; professional groups such as the American Bar Association, Women in Communications, and the National Education Association; university alumni groups; airline cards, which often tie in with frequent flier programs, allowing consumers to accumulate miles good for future travel with every purchase they make on the card; and "non-group" groups, which are designed by banks to appeal to a consumer's interest in a hobby or sport. In this last case, clever bank advertising leads the consumer to believe a group or membership is behind the effort, when in fact there is none.

There are a few affinity cards that do offer fair deals to consumers. The AFL-CIO, for instance, negotiated with the Bank of New York to offer two card programs-one with no annual fee, an interest rate 5 percent above the prime rate and no grace period; the other at 7.25 percent above the prime rate, a 25 day grace period and an annual fee ranging from $0 to $15, depending on how much is charged on the card. The card also includes enhancements such as an opportunity to postpone minimum payments during a strike. Non donation is made to the union, which is why the terms of the card are so good. The AFL-CIO negotiated a fair economic deal on the cards using he clout of its 13 million-plus membership. It did so as a long-term member attraction and retention benefit—not as a short-term money. raiser.

"The AFL-CIO deal is proof that affinity deals can be good deals for consumers," said Holstein. "Other organizations like the NFL are going to be embarrassed when their members begin to notice their friends and neighbors are getting better credit card deals on their own or through fair groups like the AFL

"In the long run," Holstein said, "passing up royalties in order to get better card terms is better for the organization as well as its members."

BHA advises consumers to save on the high rates and fees of affinity credit cards, and if they wish, to make a larger, tax-deductible donation to the charitable organization of their choice through a separate pay-

Academic success of athletes lauded at USM

HATTIESBURG-One President's list scholar, 30 more on the Dean's List and 10 others with 3.0 or better grade point averages highlight academic successes by University of Southern Mississippi athletes during the recently completed fall semester.

Russell Willis, a member of Larry Harrington's men's tennis team, compiled a perfect 4.0 GPA in American Studies, and athletes from all of USM's 15 intercollegiate sports are among the 41 athletes who finished with 3.0 or better GPA's.

"We feel the successes generated by our athletes thus far this year illustrate the importance we here at USM attach to academic excellence," said Jimmy Farris, Director/Office of Student Services for Athletics.

Athletes showing high academic achievements during the fall semester did so in a wide range of fields, including economics, biological sciences, psychology, philosophy, communications, accounting, marketing, and business administration.

Ag Affairs

By Ed Blake Mississippi Farm Bureau Federation

A POLICY PROFILE

Unless you are a farmer, or the spouse or offspring of one, you stand to lose out on becoming a part of one of the most effective exercises yet remaining in the American democratic processes.

It happens at Farm Bureau con-

Like the one the first few days of this month at Tupelo's Convention Center has hundreds of officially designated voting delegates from all 28 of this state's counties gathered for the purpose of affirming as a group the policies that would guide their organization—the Mississippi Farm Bureau Federation—in its activities during 1988.

For the most part there was little reason for debate since the policies had already been carefully developed through democratic processes at the county level and then merged by a state resolutions committee consisting of county Farm Bureau presidents of each of Mississippi's 82 counties.

But the matter at hand at the 66th annual meeting last week amounted to ratification of policies. One hit a snag. It had to do with whether the farm group favored supporting the research and promotion efforts for cotton through a check-off fee on every bale ginned by each producer on a voluntary or a mandatory basis.

It was an old hassle-one that had left some scars on the veteran farm organization when it first was debated over the state about a decade and a half ago.

The last time around the Farm Bureau delegates stuck to a voluntariness policy approach, making it possible for any farmer who deep down really did not want to pay $1 per bale for cotton's research and promotion efforts by the cotton industry with some guidance by USDA to simply apply for a refund of their check-off money and it was return-

Time has rolled along. It seems that virtually all cotton producers are happy with the results of their check-off money. Back then synthetic fibers had made some significant inroads into the overall domestic and foreign fiber markets.

With their newly gained funding source the researchers went back to the drawing board and came up with exciting new discoveries on cotton's capabilities. Cotton moved up in market demand at the expense of the synthetic fiber industry which had put much more money into the development of their products than cotton had.

With that background the issue of voluntary versus mandatory checkoffs again came before Farm Bureau delegates because of several reasons. One, farmers like their independence and don't like to be forced to do anything. A strong trait of universal human behavior. But moreover, some farmers were in a mood that they were being taken for a ride by those who, for whatever reason, elected to ask for their research and promotion money

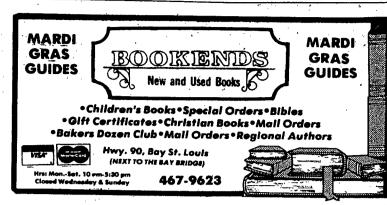

Farmer after farmer rose to their feet at the recent convention and expressed their opinions on the matter. Using floor microphones their feelings were heard throughout the huge convention floor. Occasionally heads nodded favor with statements made. Others dissented.

The proposed change in the overall policy statement was not straight to the point, clearly defining the issue. The group was bogging down in defining the exact meaning of the proposed change, displayed on an overhead projector, to the real issue.

Finally the farmer-chairman of the group cut through the confusion by asking for a simple vote on whether they favored a voluntary or a compulsory check-off, in a parliamentary move that may have brought a frown from Sturgis or Roberts or however else lays down those parliamentary rules in princi-

But the people then understood the issue, voted by a slight majority in favor of all cotton producers picking up the tab for research or promotion whether they wanted to or not-subsequent to a later producer referendum—and everyone seems to be living quite happily thereafter.

Let us be thankful for fools. . Stretch your hand to one un-Without them, how could the rest ofriended, and your loneliness is of us look good? * ended.

'Catholic Schools Share the Spirit" is the national theme for Catholic Schools Week. "The people who learn and teach in Catholic schools share the spirit in hundreds of different ways," explains Rev. Stephen O'Brien, executive director. CACE/NCEA.

"This year we have chosen to emphasize one particular way that the Catholic schools share the spirit, namely through the arts. The church has always been a patron of the arts. Catholic schools continue that tradition by teaching students an appreciation of ancient, traditional and contemporary art and by encouraging students in their own selfexpressions of the life of the spirit within them. Catholic Schools Week acknowledges the wonderful talent present in our Catholic school students and invites them to use that talent to create and appreciate the talent of others."

ASK OCHSNER

Q. What are the general effects of drinking alcohol? With the holiday season upon us, it would be an interesting subject to address from a medical standpoint. Mrs. AFJ Pur-

A. Dr. Thomas Feagin, head of the section of community internal medicine at Ochsner Clinic, says that the general effects of drinking alcohol depend on body weight and whether the drinker has or has not eaten while drinking.

Drinking alcohol can act as a general anesthetic and reduce inhibitions, but, by just consuming it in small amounts, it will impair your decision-making capabilities.

Based on consumption of a single drink (12 ounces of beer, 4 ounces of dry wine or 1 ounce of hard liquor), and given a person of average size and weight, here is the general effect of drinking:

1-2 drinks—a sense of comfort and relaxation.

3 drinks-reduced inhibitions and exaggerated behavior.

4 drinks-clumsiness and slurring of speech, and nearing the point of legal intoxication.

5 drinks-obvious intoxication; drinker will usually fall asleep.

7-8 drinks—if consumed quickly enough to raise blood alcohol level to 0.3, death can result from respiratory function failure.

The effects of alcohol on the brain and nervous system include behavioral aggressiveness, mental deterioration, poor judgement and an increased risk for accidents. It is known to contribute to violent behavior, and is responsible for auto, pedestrian and fire fatalities, suicide attempts and child abuse.

If you happen to make it home after a binge of drinking, hangovers are inevitably faced by most partygoers. Dr. Feagin thinks that heavy smoking or exposure to heavy concentrations of tobacco smoke while drinking also contributes to the headache experienced by the person who drinks too much.

Time is probably the most reliable hangover remedy. But, Dr. Feagin says taking buffered aspirin and drinking a couple of glasses of water before going to bed would help reduce the hangover effect.

And, of course, if you drink, don't drive!

USM's 75th campaign raised more than $11.7 mil

HATTIESBURG-A 30-month, 75th anniversary campaign at the University of Southern Mississippi topped its $7.5 million goal by more than $4 million in contributions.

At the close of the campaign Dec. 31, a total of $11,736,688 had been donated by alumni, friends, faculty, staff, students and corporations. Some 60 new scholarship programs were initiated, with 57 of those established as endowed programs-utilizing only the earned interest to fund annual awards.

"The campaign was a fantastic accomplishment," said retired alumni director Powell G. Ogletre, who spearheaded the fund-raising effort launched March 30, 1985. That coincided with the date in 1910 when Gov. E.F. Noel signed the school into legal existence as Mississippi Normal College.

"All the people involved were tremendously pleased with the outcome, which seemed unreachable in the beginning," Ogletree added. noting the result should "point us to bigger and better things in the

The goal for the campaign marked a 250 percent increase in donations over the previous three-year period. Ogletree said the campaign total was "almost four times the amount taken in during the previous three years," an outcome that "far and beyond exceeded our goal.'

While more than $3 million was raised by the USM Foundation during the previous three years, 1986 marked the first time during a single year that the $3 million mark was topped in grand total income. Previously, the most successful fund-raising year of more than $1 million in cash contributions was recorded in 1984. The totals include cash donations, interest, assets for USM use (gifts immediately put to use for the university) and other assets (items of future value).

Ogletree said a number of items were donated to the university during the campaign. They included 1.325 acres of timberland, several horses, a piano, computers and peripherals, books and journals, ceramic supplies, a VCR satellite system, concession trailer, typewriters, two boats and an airplane. Other items included stocks and bonds, a number of land tracts and several homes, one of which will be maintained as a life

He said, "Throughout the years, the donor has had the privilege of designating where the money would be used. Much of the campaign contributions were designated for various schools and colleges to supplement state funding, but other donations were received for the library, two fraternity houses and the renovation of the (athletic) field house. He also cited the establishment of the first endowed alumni professorship, a banking professorship and the Aubrey K. Lucas Chair as notable accomplishments.

Some of the more significant campaign highlights Ogletree outlined included the gift of a new supercomputer from the Honeywell-Bull Corp. valued at more than $3.5 million; the initiation of a number of new scholarships; the reorganization of the USM Foundation Board of Directors into a subcommittee structure that will ensure that each director is involved in a particular area of foundation work; a special endowment fund receipt of $180,000, from which only the interest will be used to provide support for the university; and the restructuring of the Annual Fund with greater emphasis on benefits for the university

According to rules on displaying the flag, you should never hang one

He lauded the contributins of former Hattiesburg Mayor Bobby Chain, who chaired the campaign steering committee in its final phase.

Ogletree also pointed out the reestablishment of the Office of Development, which played a significant role in the campaign, was made possible with the hiring of Dr. Don Elam as director in January of 1987.

"I'm sure there will be other campaigns of this nature; however, fund-raising is a daily activity at this university," said Ogletree, who retired Oct. 31 after three decades of service to USM.

Irish Nobel Peace winner to speak on Gulf Coast

An Irish Nobel Prize winner and worldwide peace activist will speak on the University of Southern Mississippi-Gulf Park campus Feb.

Betty Williams is a co-founder of a 1976 peace movement in Northern Ireland that brought thousands of Irish women into the streets to protest "senseless" killings. She will speak at 7:30 p.m. in Hardy Hall Auditorium.

Williams's crusade began Aug. 10, 1976, when gunfire erupted near her Belfast home during an exchange between English soldiers and a group of men loyal to the Irish Republican Army.

During the firefight, a bullet struck an IRA soldier whose car careened out of control, killing three children. A witness to the scene, Williams cradled one of the children in her arms, kissed her and vowed to 'do something about it."

Shocked and horrified by the tragedy, Williams and Mairead Corrigan-the aunt of the three dead children and co-winner (with Williams) of the 1977 Nobel Peace Prize-began a door-to-door campaign to convince housewives to join them in a protest march to stop the killing of innocent people.

The Saturday after the tragic deaths, 10,000 Protestant and Catholic women joined a march through hostile streets in Belfast. A week later, 20,000 marched to advocate peace.

As the movement grew, Betty Williams became an international figure and the "Community of Peace People" was organized to work for a lasting peace in Northern Ireland.

Although sporadic violence continues to erupt between Catholics and Protestants, much progress has been made since Williams and her fellow peace activists began their In 1983, the "integrated" school opened in Belfast with 16 Catholic and Protestant students. By 1986, enrollment had grown to include more than 550 students and the school was rated the top academic school in Britain. Irish peace groups also have started a number of factories and businesses to bring economic hope to Northern Ireland.

Williams's quest for world peace continues today in many countries around the world—including Ireland, Ethiopia, Nicaragua, Chile and Argentina.

In both her lectures and her peace work, Williams emphasizes the social and economic problems of world communities—the things she considers the root causes of war and conflict.

Williams-a Catholic and the progeny of a Jewish grandfather and a Protestant grandmother—currently lives in Florida with her Methodist husband and children.

The increased scholarship funds are made possible by the Phil Hardin Foundation of Meridian.

The Hardin Foundation, along with Sanderson Farms and First Mississippi Corporation Foundation, are sponsors of the Mississippi Economic Council Star Student Program, which recognizes the top student in each high school across the

Each year, MEC honors the top 20 Star Students in the state at its annual membership meeting. In past years, the top three students and their teachers were awarded scholarship funds at this meeting.

With the increased Hardin Foundation contribution, all 20 students and their teachers will receive scholarship funds. The awards for the top three students will remain $1,500, $1,000 and $500, with the teachers selected by those students receiving $300 each.

The remaining 17 students and their teachers each will receive $100 scholarships.

Tom Wacaster, vice president of educational programs of the Phil Hardin Foundation, said, "MEC's Star Program is a well-managed and effective program that encourages outstanding student academic achievement and recognizes outstanding teaching in virtually every high school in Mississippi.

"The Phil Hardin Foundation believes that outstanding teachers are the key to educational improvement in our state. Their efforts and concern and dedication, in turn, result in outstanding student achievement. Better-educated students will provide the vision, knowledge and skills needed for Mississippi to deal with the significant problems and opportunities presented by our increasingly complex world," he said.

The increase brings to $7,300 the annual grant awarded by the Hardin Foundation to the Star Program. Since 1973, the foundation has provided over $43,000 for support of the Star Program.

Howard said, "Since the Star Program's inception in 1965, the Mississippi Economic Council has recognized over 7,000 outstanding students and the teachers of their choice. MEC's goal in creating the Star Program was to encourage excellence in student achievement and in the teaching profession; and the support of Hardin Foundation, Sanderson Farms, and the First Mississippi Corporation has made this goal a reality."

Lions gift allows deaf to "talk" on telephone

HATTIESBURG—An unusual gift to the University of Southern Mississippi from local and state Lions Clubs allows deaf people to "talk" on the telephone.

Hattiesburg Lions Club officials recently presented a portable telecommunication device for the deaf (TDD) to Dr. Clyde N. Ginn, executive assistant to the USM president, for use in USM's Department of Speech and Hearing Sciences.

The department will use the device to call and be called by deaf people who otherwise could not use a phone without going through a hearing person.

"It's an interface between our department and the hearing impaired community," said Dr. Margaret F. Carlin, an associate professor of speech and hearing sciences. "Deaf clients, parents, students or professionals can call in to us for information, appointments—any reason we use a phone."

"It's a very good teaching tool also. We can show our studnts what it is and how to use it," she added.

The Portaview Junior, Model PV20, manufactured by Krown Research Inc. and sold for about $250, is the second telephone for the deaf that the Lions Club has given to USM. The first, a larger model with a hard-copy printer, is kept in the University Union, where a special sign indicates its availability.

The TDDs, which resemble a portable computer keyboard, allow even totally deaf people to use the phone in complete privacy, by printing type-written messages on a lighted display or on paper, depending upon the capabilities of the equipment. The TDD also gives the user visual signals, which show when the phone is ringing and when someone has answered.

Without a TDD, privacy is a problem for deaf people because they must solicit the help of a hearing person to place a phone call, Carlin said

"We probably don't realize how much independence they lose," she said. "If you want to call your doctor, or if you just want to call your mom and say you're not going to be there, you have to get someone to do it for you."

Carlin is working with the Lions Club to promote the use of TDDs in the area.

"I think the use of these (TDDs) will start off slow, but as soon as people find out we have them, the use will increase. Once you start to get

Children benefit

HATTIESBURG—The Mississippi Department of Education has awarded a $106,058 grant to the School for Children with Language Disorders at the University of Southern Mississippi.

The grant, funded by the state department's Minimum Foundation Program, suports salaries and the purchase of supplies and materials for the purpose of intensive language and speech services to SCLD's 34 currently enrolled students from 12 school districts in the Hattiesburg area, according to

Dr. Etoile DuBard, SCLD director.
USM also provides funding for SCLD, which teaches students with severe hearing, language and speech disorders.

USM prof to discuss campus crime on Donahue Show

HATTIESBURG—Michael Clay Smith became a wanted man this month—first locally, then national-

Wanted by the news media, that is.
When the University of Southern Mississippi criminal justice professor's new book on campus crime was released early this month, a trickle of media attention soon swelled into a flood. Now, Smith is set to appear on the "Donahue" show in New York this month.

But, Smith hasn't let it go to his head—at least not yet.

"I was just in the right place at the right time; my book happened to come along when media attention was focusing on (campus crime)," he modestly insists. However, "It's nice to be in the big time."

His publisher, MacMillan Publishing Co., Inc. in New York, says there's more to it than that; they promote Smith's book as the first in its field.

Typical of Smith's hectic life in the past week or so—he still has seven classes to teach—a recent interview was interrupted by a phone conversation with his publisher about who ought to be sent copies of the book. The "Donahue" show originally requested just one.

"Now they want three," Smith told his publisher on the phone. "Phil Donahue requested his own copy."

Since the book's release, Smith has received attention from newspapers in Hattiesburg, Jackson and Baltimore, and he expects 25 to 30 professional journals of law, criminal justice, psychology and educational administration to review the book.

"I attended a national conference on campus violence at Towson State University (in Baltimore) last week, and one of the big television stations interviewed me," Smith said, adding that a Baltimore radio station interviewed him too. He thinks the "Donahue" show discovered him through the Baltimore coverage. Also, it probably didn't hurt that USA Today recently ran a cover story on campus crime.

"Donahue" is set to fly Smith to New York at their expense for a Jan. 28 show that will be seen live in the New York area, but will appear on most other stations carrying "Donahue" the next day, a spokesman for the show said.

WLOX-TV, Channel 13, will air the hour-long campus crime program at 9 a.m. Jan. 29, a station spokesman said.

The "Donahue" spokesman said he couldn't say who else would appear on the program, because staff people were still arranging the lineup. Smith also said he wasn't sure what to expect.

"There will probably be some college administrators as well as the victims of campus crime," Smith speculated. "There's been a lot of attention devoted (recently) to serious violence on campus—rape and murder, as well as the new phenomenon of courtship violence and date rape."

Smith said the recent attention given to date rape comes partly because of a new awareness of it as a crime, but also because it happens more often nowadays.

"You find many victims of date rape who may (later) say, 'You mean that was rape?' "Smith said, adding that many date rape cases aren't recognized as rape or reported as such.

However, "There is a different morality that many men have. They think that sex with their date is their right. That was not true two decades ago, when I was in college.

"The remedy is educational, not legal," Smith asserted.

Smith, an assistant professor of criminal justice at USM, holds a master's degree in social ethics, a doctor of ministry in constitutional law, church and state relations, a law degree and a doctor of philosophy in criminal justice. He also is 1987-88 secretary-treasurer of the Criminal Law Section of the Mississippi State Bar.

His book, "Coping with Crime on Campus," is available at $24.95 through bookstores or from the publisher.
